LOUISE AND EDNA REMING.

weet and cute," remarked Miss Wilber's Ann, leaning heavily against Mr. Ja Burleigh, who said, "Be careful, we're in public."

The twins suddenly danced a few steps of a clog. "We are the Dutch Bro rs and have graduated from the variety stage, not to our discredit. Formerly hauled a vegetable cart for a German family in Hoboken, N. J., but as they intend o separate us we left one night and took the ferry for New York City. We could fford to be separated. One is no good without the other, so we accepted a sm alary and went on the stage. We have done the right thing. Of course we real he step we have taken and know that society's door is closed against us, but we h o work or form part of the park mounted police force, and we didn't like serva irls. We are from one of the very best families. Our parents were attached to rewery wagon, hence our German extraction."

The inquest being over there was a buzz of excitement and show of surprise
